1. Component parts for the V-2 rocket were made at the Tanvald, (051/G36) metal parts factory under the German occupation during World War II. By 1946 the factory had been converted to the civilian production of stoves, ranges, electric irons and the like. In the summer of 1946 most of the employees were female.
2. In February or March of 1952 the factory was made a part of the nationalized car industry (AZNP). Elektropraga removed most of the machinery to other plants and new machinery was installed. It is probable that the plant is now producing component parts for aircraft and automobiles.
